Nixon's Pollution Message

Seeks $10 Billion for Air, Water

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon called today for "a total mobilization" of all Americans in a concentrated campaign to clean the air and purify the nation's polluted waters.

In a special message to Congress following up his State of the Union pledge to make cleaning the environment the primary effort of the 70s, Nixon outlined a lengthy plan for "the rescue of our natural habitat."

The program includes a $10 billion project for cleaning up waters and calls for rigid regulations to deal with air and water polluters.

"The time has come when we can wait no longer to repair the damage already done and to establish new criteria to guide us in the future," Nixon said. "The task of cleaning up our environment calls for a total mobilization by all of us. It involves government at every level; it requires the help of every citizen."

Asks $4 Billion

The main feature of the so-called Environmental Quality Program proposes a clean waters act through which $4 billion would be authorized to help state and local communities build sewage treatment facilities.

The $4 billion would have to be matched by $6 billion in contributions from state and local governments. A special federal group called the Environmental Financing Authority would be set up to help hard-pressed municipalities raise the money to meet their share of the cost.

He asked for a $4 billion authorization over a four-year period—at a rate of $1 billion per year—starting in the year beginning July 1. A reassessment would be made in 1973 to determine future needs.

The President's message called for establishment of federal water and air quality standards, with fines of up to $10,000 a day for violations.

Swift Court Action

Federal enforcement procedures would be revised to permit swifter court action against violators and the interior secretary would be empowered to seek immediate injunctions where severe pollution existed.

The President also proposed a research and development program aimed at producing a low pollution automobile within five years.

He asked that the secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare be authorized to regulate the composition of gasoline to cut down on pollution. There is fresh agitation to force gasoline makers to remove lead from gasoline to cut down on air pollution.

On Monday, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger swore in three members of Nixon's newly created Council on Environmental Quality—Train, former president of the Conservation Foundation; Robert Cahn, Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter for the Christian Science Monitor; and Gordon J. F. McDonald, vice chancellor for research at the University of California at Santa Barbara.

12 Americans Die in Copter Crash

(Combined Wire Services)

SAIGON — A U. S. Army helicopter loaded to capacity crashed into a refugee shantytown a mile from its destination

in Da Nang today, killing all 12

Americans aboard. The helicopter missed the houses, and no

Vietnamese civilians were hurt.

The UH1 Huey was en route from Chu Lai, about 50 miles southeast of Da Nang, to Freedom

Hill, a replacement center near 1st Marine Division headquarters. The 12 men aboard included six Army men, five Navy men and a Marine, officials said, and civilian-type luggage found in the wreckage indicated that some of the passengers

may have been going on leave or home to the United States.

The cause of the crash was not known immediately, but officials said there was no indication the aircraft had been shot down.

One Vietnamese said he heard an explosion while the helicopter was in the air and, looking up, saw its tail boom break off.

The aircraft crashed at the edge of a vegetable patch, about 15 feet from a pink stucco house, flipped over and burned.

Its tail boom and rotor blade landed about 50 feet away in the back yard of another house.

A U.S. Marine security force

sealed off the area.

Eleven of the men were killed outright. The 12th died on the way to the hospital.

It was the second fatal air crash at Da Nang in two days.

A U.S. Navy pilot was killed

Monday when his A4 Skyhawk fighter-bomber skidded off a runway while landing and flipped over.

Battlefield activity was reported at a low level.

Twenty-six North Vietnamese soldiers were reported killed

Monday in two more encounters with government forces in the northern Mekong Delta's Plain of Reeds. South Vietnamese troops have massed in the area to head off elements of the North Vietnamese 88th Regiment, believed headed for My

Tho, the delta's most important city.

In Saigon, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird

arrived in Saigon today on a fact-finding mission for President Nixon and said the process of giving Southeast

Asian nations a greater role in their own security is "irreversible."

Laird flew in from Washington with Gen. Earle G.

Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to survey

progress in "Vietnamization."

He said the "policy of turning over greater responsibility to Southeast Asian nations is a policy which will be steadfastly adhered to and could be called irreversible."

Laird said the continued

accelerated withdrawal of U.S.

combat forces was dependent on three things: progress in the Paris peace talks, the level of North Vietnamese and Vietnam military activities in South Vietnam, and the moves toward "Vietnamization."

Under the "Vietnamization" program, the South Vietnamese will take over the major burden of the war against the Communists. About 60,000

American troops have been withdrawn from South Vietnam

since last summer.

Laird was met at Tan Son

Nhut Airport by U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth C. Bunker

and Gen. Creighton W. Abrams,

the American military commander in Vietnam.

Laird is on a 10-day Asian trip for what was called a top-

to-bottom look at how well

South Vietnam is taking over the war effort and how quickly

the United States can extricate itself.

He was under instructions from Nixon "to follow up and go thoroughly into the areas of Vietnamization — even more thoroughly — than on his last visit to Vietnam last March.

Basement Realty Plan Argued

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Basement Realty's proposal to redevelop the Goodyear property on North Front Street will now go to the Common Council for approval after Monday night's public hearing at city hall in which six persons spoke for the plan and two spoke against it.

In a related development, a condemnation-like proceeding was held in the county court house yesterday afternoon in which Vincent Carpio of 61

Murphy Street attempted to prevent the urban renewal agency from taking his property for the uptown project.

The entire urban renewal

project, its planning and its execution, is expected to be argued.

Yesterday's proceedings,

which saw urban renewal director James G. Connors and KURA engineer Augustus S.

Brinnier take the stand, are be-

Alderman-at-Large T. Robert

Gallo presided at last night's public hearing and began the meeting by reading the notice of public hearing published in

The Freeman.

He then asked for opinions

from those in favor of the redevelopment, said that "Hanstein is very much in favor" (of the proposal).

William Ryan, an attorney, and a 10 per cent shareholder

in Basement Realty, was the first speaker and termed the plan "a good proposal for the entire city. He said the new

Goodyear Service Center would be "a shot in the arm" for the uptown business area and added that it would increase real estate values in the area.

Francis J. Vogt, who said he was representing the Hanstein

Insurance company, which has offices at the corner of Washington Avenue and Hurley Avenue near the site of the proposed redevelopment, said that "Hanstein is very much in favor" (of the proposal).

"The function of urban renewal is to rescue substandard areas and get developers. This is precisely what Goodyear will accomplish. It seems that Goodyear is the very epitome of what urban renewal is trying to accomplish," Vogt said.

Harry Webster, who owns the

JGW Dry Cleaners on North

Front Street, also came out in favor of the plan although he said, "I think they're moving awfully slow." Webster said the Common Council should approve the plan.

The opposition was represented by Harry M. Thayer, who identified himself as a Crown

Street taxpayer and "a representative of the news media in the public behalf" and Clifford

V. Bunting, owner of the Kingston Luggage Shop on North

Front Street. Thayer is president of Radio Station WGHQ.

(Editor's Note: It should be pointed out that Mr. Thayer was expressing his own point of view, and not necessarily

that of The Daily Freeman.)

Thayer took the position that if the property is sold by urban renewal to Basement Realty for the agreed price of $24,000 that it would lower values on surrounding properties.

He said the city would be

"locked in at that price" and that he was opposed to the "cut rate selling of property."

Thayer said that private sales in the area for properties of similar size were much higher.

He said that the New York

Telephone property on Converse

Street was sold for $50,000 and that the Burroughs property in the same area was sold for $25,000.

Thayer noted that the old

Post Office property on Broadway was sold for $110,000 and port. Police said the dead man was an Arab. They said he had thrown a hand grenade in the transit lounge. In Tel Aviv, a spokesman for Israel's El Al Airline said that passengers and crew of one of its aircraft had been fired on in the airport. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Odets' 'Waiting for Lefty' Brings an Onteora Rhubarb

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

BOICEVILLE

Clifford Odets is a name that conjures up a few dim memories in the minds of the over 30s; rings no bells at all with the younger generation.

His most famous play, "Waiting for Lefty," is so outdated today,

no movie or stage produce-would risk financing its revival.

Americans, for the most part,

long ago gave up "Waiting for Lefty" for "Waiting for Godot."

But at Monday night's meeting of the Board of Education of

Onteora Schools, Odets and

"Lefty" were the center of controversy.

Wilbur Mundy, a Woodstock

resident with a 16-year-old daughter in the 11th grade, strongly protested the fact that his daughter had been assigned to read the play and submit a report on it in English class.

Said Mundy: "We cannot go

should be done about it so that

Breakfast Meal Turns Into Tragedy

Avalanche Kills 40 at Alpine Ski Resort

VAL D'ISERE, France (UPI) — An avalanche rolled off Dome Mountain and engulfed a three-story youth hostel and a hostel at this Alpine ski resort today, killing dozens of tourists and burying hundreds.

By noon rescuers had recovered 40 bodies from the hostel and the Edelweiss Hotel in France's worst avalanche in 17 years. Officials said they feared the death toll would mount as the day goes on.

Sixty persons had been rescued, many of them seriously injured.

An estimated 200 guests were at breakfast in the youth hostel when the snow cascaded down the 10,000-foot mountain without warning, crumpling some automobiles in the parking lot and carrying others away like rowboats on a tidal wave.

One official said the snow hit "like a bulldozer," without warning. Some of the victims were either in the parking lot or in their cars, unable to flee quickly enough to escape the onrushing tide of snow.

A second avalanche came off another mountain at nearby Chamonix and blocked the road between Argentiere and Le Col des Montets but authorities said there were no casualties. The road was quickly cleared but remained closed for safety's sake.

The slides were believed triggered by one of the worst snowstorms ever to hit this world-famous ski area. It prevented rescue parties from reaching Val D'Isere at once from outlying points.

Officials in Paris said young Belgian and German tourists were among the guests at the hostel. The Belgian group of about 20 persons had come sponsored by the Belgian Skiing Federation.

About a dozen doctors who had been on ski vacations did their best to tend the injured, some so seriously hurt they were not expected to live.

Officials said the avalanche swept down from the Dome Mountain and over the stone hostel "like a bulldozer" shortly after 8 a.m. The hostel is run for guests under 25 by the Union of Fresh Air Centers, a French organization.

So forceful was the sudden snowslide that it swept automobiles as far as 150 yards from their parking places around the hostel.

The hostel was filled nearly to capacity, for this is the height of the winter ski season. Val D'Isere is the home of French Olympic ski champion Jean Claude Killy, considered the world's premier skier.

CREEK LOCKS JAM — The Rondout Creek flows gently through foot-thick ice floes crumpled together near Creek Locks. The ice pileup caused some concern last week during runoff and rain. However, representatives of the State Conservation Department's flood control section who inspected the site Monday afternoon said there is no immediate danger. Good flow of the creek underneath the ice continues as an eroding agent, dissolving the accumulation. Today the rains came, further melting the floes. (Freeman photo by Haines).

School Fund Crisis — Hearing at GWS Tonight

By WALTER S. CLARK

KINGSTON Proposed cutbacks in state aid to local education that could bring about irreparable results through increased real estate taxes, will be discussed at a public meeting tonight at 7:30 in the George Washington School auditorium on Wall Street.

At this session the public will be informed of how this financial crisis may effect programs and the quality of education in the Kingston School District Consolidated.

Board of Education members who are concerned about how the impending financial crisis will result unless the State Legislature takes immediate action, is seeking the aid of its employees and the public, and urge everyone concerned about increases in school taxes to state their views known to state officials immediately.

It was noted in a Board release that during the 1969 session of the State Legislature bills were passed cutting back state aid to education. Some cutbacks went into effect at the beginning of the present school year. It also was pointed out that Governor Rockefeller's recent recommendations for state aid to education, if passed by the legislature, would reinstate only part of the loss.

The board further contends that unless the public acts now to convince the legislature to reinstate full state subsidy the results may be irreparable. Tonight's meeting will be open for suggestions and recommendations from area taxpayers who are urged to help bring about legislative changes immediately.

The newly formed Kingston Area Parents Association plans to have a delegation at the meeting tonight. Organizational details were worked out at president.

Closed Meeting Due On KTF Grievance

KINGSTON Arthur H. Withall, president of the Board of Education of the Kingston School District Consolidated, said today that a hearing will be scheduled later this month on a grievance filed by the Kingston Teachers Federation relating to the recent appointment of Louis A. Salzmann to the post of superintendent of schools.

Withall noted that the hearing will not be open to the public and those attending will be Board members and a committee representing the KTF.

Richard J. Davis, KTF president, said the basis for the grievance lies in a provision of the current collective negotiations agreement between the school district and the KTF. This provision, Davis noted, states that notification of all vacancies for positions other than classroom teaching positions "shall be posted in each teachers' room in the district."

Davis contended that the provision further provides that the notice shall include a written job description, criteria which applicants must meet if they wish to be considered for the position, and a date for filing an application. He said no such notice was given prior to the board's announcement filling the position.

"The executive committee of KTF feels this clearly represents a contract violation," Davis said. He added that he had been directed by the executive committee to point out that the "board's choice of Mr. Salzmann in no way effects our decision to process this grievance. The Federation has worked quite satisfactorily with Mr. Salzmann since he assumed the position of acting superintendent. Our decision to grieve was based solely upon the actions of the Board of Education which we believe to be contrary to contractual agreement."

Following the hearing, the Board is required to render its writing copies of its findings within five school days, and the findings of the Board can be submitted by the Federation to binding arbitration, Davis said.

Probe Theft Of Wrist Watch

KINGSTON at 9:20 a.m. that he was playing volleyball with an IBM team last night, and later he discovered someone had taken the watch from his trousers pocket.

Deputy Chief Julius Glassman reported that Jerry Letterman of Cherry Hill, told police

The watch was valued by the owner at $175.

Bell Would Curb Irresponsible Youth

KINGSTON Assemblyman H. Clark Bell has introduced legislation designed to curb willful and malicious destruction of property by irresponsible young people.

The measure has a two-pronged approach providing the court with the power to order either the parent or the child to make restitution for the damage sustained.

Assemblyman Bell said that the great majority of today's young people, about 94 per cent, are responsible members of the community. A small number of young people, however, have caused much wanton and willful destruction which must be curbed.

The bill is co-sponsored by 85 assemblymen.

The bill should make parents more aware of their children's activities and in particular make parents feel a responsibility to know where their children are and what they are doing, Bell said.

It covers 10 to 16-year-old children and authorizes the Family Court Judge to order the child found responsible for willful or malicious damage to either pay for or replace the damage up to a limit of $500.

Another important provision is the authorization to order the child to work on a municipal project in lieu of payment of a particular amount if the judge thinks such action appropriate.

In 1969 a new school could have been built in the City of

New York with the funds that were used to repair and replace damaged property as the result of vandalism, Bell explained. The Board of Education of the City of New York said that it cost $2.7 million to repair property damaged by vandalism. In Buffalo, the loss was $68,000 and in Syracuse the loss was $71,529.

"Vandalism must be stopped and I hope this bill will help," he concluded.

'Work Stoppage' Called by Teachers

Poughkeepsie Schools Officially Open, But...

By HUGH REYNOLDS

POUGHKEEPSIE Poughkeepsie school crisis. The school board and its representatives of the teachers seem to be drifting apart, after meeting with school board officials Monday night, called a "work stoppage" early this morning to include all teachers in the school system not just the high school and the middle school, where the difficulty began over a discipline problem last Wednesday.

"We met last night," Mrs. Rupert Tarver, president of the Poughkeepsie Board of Education, told The Freeman today. "The meeting ended in a most pleasant atmosphere. We were surprised at their action this morning."

The schools are officially open, Mrs. Tarver said. Attendance by both teachers and students varies from school to school, however. Mrs. Tarver said one school, the Clinton School, had 14 of 17 teachers report for work yesterday. The situation at the high school is reportedly just the opposite with more than 100 of the 125 teachers out. Of the 1,900 students at Poughkeepsie High School only about 400 were in attendance on Monday.

The difficulty began last Monday with an argument between students in the boys' locker room of the high school. Teachers moved in to break it up and were reported physically restrained by some of the students.

Four students were suspended for a five-day period on Monday but were reinstated on Wednesday by school administrators.

Some 85 teachers walked off the job on Wednesday afternoon claiming the administration would not support them in their disciplinary actions.

More than 1,500 persons turned out for a public meeting of the board of education on the issue at the high school on Thursday night. Meetings between teachers and the board of education have continued ever since, with, to date, no settlement.

The teacher's association has presented a list of 25 proposals to the board of education, 23 of which have been reportedly accepted.

Mrs. Tarver said another meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. tonight between the teachers' representatives and the board of education.

Probe Is Requested Of Fire in Wallkill

WALLKILL State police were called in by fire officials Monday night to investigate a fire that erupted in the boiler room area of the Wallkill Dye Works in the heart of the business district on Main Street.

Fire Chief Melvin Bedford, who was in command of 29 volunteer firefighters from the district, said the fire was discovered by a passerby who notified fire officials hours after the plant closed down for the day.

Bedford said flames were sweeping through the boiler room when firemen arrived at the scene. The blaze burned up through the flooring to the second floor, but efforts of firemen checked the spread of the flames. Fire damage was confined to the heating plant area.

The three-story building was formerly occupied by a hat factory.

Highland BCI officers of the state police and fire officials from the local department are investigating to determine the origin of the blaze.

Woman Hurt In Accident

TOWN OF ULSTER A four-car pileup on Route 209 near the Route 28 overpass at about 8:05 a. m. today, caused injury to at least one person.

Miss Frances Jacobson, 26, of 86B Fairmont Avenue, was taken from the scene of the mishap by Doctors Ambulance to Benedictine Hospital. It was reported she sustained injuries of the shoulders.

Kingston State Police said an incomplete report noted that a car was parked with part of it extending on the highway and it was hit by another vehicle followed by the crash of two other automobiles.

County Seniors Will Organize

KINGSTON The initial step toward the establishment of a senior citizens county organization for the free exchange of information on common problems will be a meeting of representatives from all parts of the county with the Senior Citizens Advisory Council.

Council Coordinator Alexander Yosman said invitations were mailed to all Senior Citizens Club presidents in the county for a meeting March 10 at 2 p.m. in Wiltwyck Gardens with members of the Senior Citizens Advisory Council.

Yosman said the idea is to draw all senior citizens into a unified body and establish a clearing house for problems. He said it is time that the council "branch out" and work for a greater number of people. In slightly more than three years, the council has been operating, they have been able to institute a number of programs and answer countless questions for local senior citizens.

Yosman said "the council feels that the senior citizens of the entire county desperately need a central agency to foster a free exchange of information on a host of common problems."

In order for everyone attending to get a better idea of what the problems really are on a county-wide basis, each representative attending the meeting has been asked to meet with their group first to discuss their individual problems and any solutions or recommendations they can bring to the rest of the group.

As a follow-up to this meeting, the council will plan a one day seminar to cover the specific areas brought up by the club presidents. This has been tentatively set for May, Senior Citizen's Month. All county senior citizens are invited to attend the May meeting to hear discussions on a number of areas, including recreation, housing, taxes, self-help programs, social security, etc. The seminar, Yosman concluded, will be of the "give and take" variety. It will give all of us the opportunity to air our problems, recommendations and solutions and, at the same time, be heard by people who are in a position to initiate action in these areas.

The May seminar will be open to all city, town, county, state and federal officials. Yosman said if any senior citizen group failed to receive a letter to attend the March 10 meeting to please call the Senior Citizens Advisory Council and receive the necessary information pertaining to this most important planning meeting.

Red Hook Board Sets Bus Garage Vote

RED HOOK Voters in the Red Hook School District will vote on the construction of an additional bus garage this year, it was announced at Monday evening's school board meeting.

Parker Dodge Associates are working on specifications for the garage, which will house at least ten more buses at the Mill Road School site, as well as smaller automotive equipment.

"We have a capital reserve fund, with $10,000 added each year, and have about enough to cover the expected bids for this," said District Principal Russell Keefe.

The board discussed the reasons for seeking admittance to the Ulster County Athletic League from the present status in the Bi-Valley League. Two primary reasons were better travel arrangements, plus the fact that Red Hook is larger than most of the schools in the Dutchess loop and "we prefer stiffer competition," said Keefe.

Red Hook will be among the smaller schools in the UCAAL when it joins in 1971-72. "We have been playing these schools for years, and have done all right against them," commented Keefe.

The board approved additional staff positions for next year, including a full time speech teacher and full time Spanish teacher, instead of the three-day-a-week BOCES supplied instruction.

The high school will begin German language courses next year, and a German-English teacher will be sought. An additional music teacher was also approved.

Maynard Hamm was appointed teacher on three-years probation, and Henry Miller was appointed full time bus driver.

The Dutchess County Health Department will hold a rubella clinic at the Linden Avenue School from 10-12 a.m. Feb. 29 for children from 4-10.

Members of the board will attend a bond sale in New York at 11:30 a. m. Wednesday at the offices of Sykes, Galloway, and Dikeman. The bonds are for the Mill Road School 36-room addition, which is currently awaiting good weather for continuation of construction.

The board approved advertising for bids for three new 61 passenger buses for next year. "We ordered five last April, and two haven't been delivered yet," said Keefe, commenting on the delay generally experienced.

Salary schedules for teaching personnel were reviewed by the board. The district is looking toward the second year of a two-year contract, and negotiations will not be necessary. Both teaching and non-teaching salary schedules "will be ready in March 1," said Keefe.

A tested method of teaching students who cannot attend regular sessions will be used with home on two other occasions. Wayne Holsapple, a high school senior who was badly injured in an automobile accident rather than hiring private tutors and can work well."

The board approved installation of an intercom system between his hospital bed and the classroom for four subjects. He is in Northern Dutchess Hospital.

The Albany Package

Seven Bills to Counter Auto Thefts

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — It would be tougher for organized crime to steal cars to order if New York State were to adopt a certificate of title for every automobile, Sen. Albert B. Lewis, D-Brooklyn, contends.

The Brooklyn legislator introduced a package of seven bills Monday to counter the rising trend in auto thefts.

The central bill, and the one Lewis feels has the best chance of passage, would require every automobile to have a title certificate — like a house — rather than merely an easily tampered-with registration form.

"Our streets are showcases for thieves to steal cars," Lewis said. "It's no longer a joy-riding situation."

According to the senator, there were 103,500 cars stolen in the state in 1968, up 25 per cent from the previous year. He said preliminary statistics indicated a rise of more than 30 per cent last year.

Lewis said 49 per cent of the stolen cars in 1968 were not recovered, producing a loss of $50 million. The loss in unrecovered thefts skyrocketed 600 per cent over the last six years.

The Brooklyn legislator further contended that in the 42 states where title certificates are required, 81 per cent of the stolen cars are recovered.

Theft insurance is also much more expensive in New York than it is in title-requiring states, Lewis said.

By way of example, he said a typical premium for such insurance in the Bronx would be $144, compared to $80 in Chicago, $60 in Philadelphia and $50 in Newark. He contended that his package could lower overall auto insurance for New York City residents by $200 a family.

With a title certificate, Lewis said, a vehicle's complete history could be quickly checked, after auto registration forms so that it is virtually impossible to determine whether a car has been stolen.

Many Last-Minute Appeals As the Blaine Vote Nears

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — A flurry of last-minute appeals set the stage for Senate debate today on the emotion-charged issue of providing the state funds that many parochial school officials say is needed to keep them from closing their doors.

The Senate was to vote first on a proposal to repeal the State Constitution's so-called Blaine Amendment, which prohibits direct or indirect state support of church-affiliated schools. If repeal is approved there, the Assembly will act on the proposal Wednesday.

As the showdown approached, more individuals and groups made their positions known in no uncertain terms.

Opposing repeal were such organizations as the State School Boards Association, the United Federation of Teachers and the State Council of Churches, a Protestant group, in addition to political figures like New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay and Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Eugene Nickerson.

Advocates of repeal included the State AFL-CIO, Republican Gov. Rockefeller and two other Democrats seeking to become governor — Howard J. Samsuels and William vanden Heuvel.

The Senate was to take up the issue in the early afternoon. Legislative activity Monday was highlighted by a plan put forward by Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea Jr. for lowering the voting age in New York State in three steps.

Under what Duryea called "an innovative approach," the legal voting age would go from 21 to 20 by 1972, to 19 six years later and to 18 by 1984.

The speaker said about 35 members of the Assembly's Republican majority would join him in sponsoring the proposal.

Meanwhile, Rockefeller submitted to the legislature a plan for overhauling the present system of levying property taxes in the state.

The governor said real property too often is assessed inequitably. A key section of his proposal is to permit counties to take over the assessing function from local communities and school districts, pending voter approval in local referendums.

In another development Monday, the legislature's minority Democratic leaders unveiled a 10-point program to curb drug use. It included a provision under which school children would be taught the danger of narcotics as early as the first grade.

The Senate had planned to act on the Blaine repeal proposal last week but postponed the vote until today so that the Assembly—which had no measure before it at that time—could follow up quickly.

One effect of the postponement, however, has been to give opponents of state aid to parochial schools a chance to plead their case.

The UFT has contacted all of the lawmakers and left with them a memorandum maintaining that repeal would hurt public education. "The public school system will be eroded to the point where only the poverty-stricken children and the rejects from the sectarian schools will attend," the memo read in part.

The School Boards Association argued that "a state unable or unwilling to maintain full support of public education certainly is in no position to take on the added burden of paying for private schools."

There now are about 700,000 children in Roman Catholic elementary and secondary schools, and the number is declining every year.

Advocates of support to keep these schools open face the task of getting the Blaine repealer through two separately elected legislatures and approved by the voters in a referendum. The earliest this could happen is 1972.

is said he thought thefts could be cut 50 per cent if his package is passed.

Other segments provide for surrender of vehicle identification numbers to the Department of Motor Vehicles before insurance companies pay off on total wrecks so that thieves can't use such numbers on stolen cars, and restrictions on the possession of locksmith tools, already in effect in New York City.

Also, both buyer and seller would be required to check the vehicle identification number; rebuilt vehicles assigned new numbers would have to be so marked, and Congress would be memorialized to mandate careful identification of autos before they are shipped out of the country.

Lewis said he expected opposition to come from used car dealers, who would not be able to stretch the truth about a vehicle's history.

He said that under the state's present "antiquated laws and procedures," the state was acting as a "silent accomplice" to professional auto thieves.

"As long as we stay open the way we are," he declared, "they can operate here."

Chicago '7' In Last Phase

CHICAGO (UPI)—The trial of the "Chicago Seven," after 193 witnesses, four and a half months and more than 20,000 pages of transcript, entered its final phase today.

The prosecution was to go first in presentation of final arguments. Each side was allowed seven hours by presiding U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman.

If both prosecution and defense used the full allotment, the case could go to the jury late this week.

At stake for each of the defendants is a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a fine of $20,000. For the government the case is the first test of a controversial federal statute forbidding conspiracy to cross a state line to incite a riot.

Monday the judge refused to issue a directed verdict of acquittal and the prosecution charged the defense would use final arguments to encourage the jury to "engage in civil disobedience" by disobeying Hoffman's instructions.

The defense asked for the directed verdict on the grounds the government had failed to prove its case. The argument was regarded as a formality and Hoffman had been expected to deny it.

After a review of the trial, which started Sept. 24, Hoffman said, "I can conclude that the evidence is sufficient to sustain a conviction on each count of the indictment."

He then granted time for summations. The prosecution had asked for 10 hours, the defense had requested five. Although it goes first, the government may reserve a portion of its seven hours for use after the defense completes its closing argument.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard G. Schultz told Hoffman he believes the defense will use its summation time to emphasize the effect a guilty verdict could have on free speech in the United States.

Won't Censor Defense Summary
"I imagine they will ask the jury to commit civil disobedience by refusing to obey Your Honor's final instructions," he said.

Hoffman said he hoped "such a thing will not occur." But he said he would not rule any area out of bounds before the beginning of summations.

The government submitted 88 proposed instructions to be included in the final charge to the jury. Hoffman accepted all but two of them in total or "in substance."

LIRR Service And Neurosis

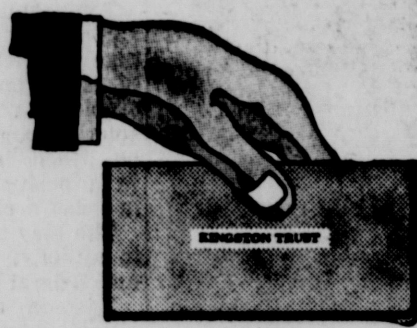

MINEOLA, N. Y. (AP) — The Long Island Rail Road's service has given Burton H. Mandel "commuter neurosis," he says, and he has filed a $50,000 claim for compensation.

Mandel, 39, an advertising representative from Freeport, N.Y., rides the much-criticized commuter line to his job in New York City and back. He also threw in a $373.15 claim for breach of contract. That's what he has paid for tickets since May.

Mandel said the daily ride was so frustrating that it brought "severe psychological personal injury, aggravation of anxiety and stress symptoms requiring continuing treatment."

He said Monday he had been seeing a psychiatrist since before his problems with the railroad but that the line's service had made his mental state worse.

After Two Hours of Debate

Zoning Change Compromise Reached in Rhinebeck

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK — A tentative compromise on a zoning change was reached Monday night after two hours of debate by members of the Village Board, Planning Board and residents of this village.

The point in question was whether to grant a change in the proposed new zoning law from residential to industrial on about 13 acres of land owned by Robert Fried, president of NOW Corporation.

Also discussed was the feasibility of extending the village's proposed commercial district to Center Street on East Market Street, and also whether Chestnut Street should be changed from lots of 3,500 square feet to lots of 10,000 square feet.

The primary issue brought in excess of 20 residents of the Crossmour, Wyncoop Lane section of the village out to express viewpoints on the advisability of permanently setting an industrial parcel of land in the midst of this residential area.

Fried, who proposed the change at the last public hearing, gave several reasons why he thought the change should be made. Among them were that the plant, when properly controlled, is an asset to the community; that a business should have a legal right to prosper; that the plant provides several thousand dollars in taxes each year, as light industry and that if there were no certainty for planning purposes, the plant might have to relocate outside the village limits.

Fried has management of land directly north of the village on Route 9, a section deemed commercial and industrial by the proposed town zoning law, and also owns substantial acreage in Staatsburg, where a larger facility is operated by him.

Several residents expressed concern that the proposed change would leave the tract open to future persons who might want to build objectionable factories, and the plant is an eyesore in the section of the village on east Route 308.

A show of hands by residents of this neighborhood, at the request of Mayor Peter Sipperley, brought the near unanimous agreement that the area should not be rezoned as industrial.

Richard Crowley, local architect, championed a cause suggesting that "one form of architectural zoning controls be established in Rhinebeck to 'soften the impact' of buildings which might be disharmonious."

He said that members of the Dutchess County Landmarks Association will hold a meeting result instead of a controlled light industry plant.

Deadline for Dog Owners in State Townships

By SHANE CROSBY

NEW PALTZ

Today is the last day for dog owners to obtain licenses in New York State townships before a stiffer approach to handling delinquent cases goes into effect.

A survey of town clerks in the southern Ulster County area shows that as the last day for filing arrived, clerks and dog wardens were keeping busy checking off the population of the K-9 set.

The main problem for clerks and dog owners stems from a new order from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets — the office that oversees dog licensing in the state requiring town clerks to submit a list of delinquent dog owners to the state and also to bring the owner into town court for a mandatory fine after today's deadline.

One southern Ulster town clerk, while not wishing to be identified, said on the eve of the deadline that many clerks are "getting up in arms" over the state order that holds the clerk responsible if he fails to submit the delinquent list. "They don't like this," he said.

The issue is one that is expected to be brought up at the annual meeting of the Association of Towns being held in New York City through Wednesday.

In addition to stiffer requirements for the handling of overdue dog licenses, the new order requires that clerks keep a record of dead dogs in their township.

In Wawarsing, the town's deputy clerk, Mrs. Kenneth Mitchell, whose husband serves as town clerk, said her office has also been "pretty busy for the past few days." She said as resident come in to renew their dog licenses, their name is checked off a list, and what remains after closing time today will be put under the heading of delinquent.

"I guess we will have to send out warrants," she said of the soon to be delinquent dog owners. With an estimated 2,000 dog owners in the town and village of Ellenville, Mrs. Mitchell said a lot of the residents "just forget to renew. It slip their mind."

Another clerk commented that his dog warden didn't even check into the town's office on Monday. "He's been kept on the move," said Lloyd clerk Vincent Gaffney, adding that the warden has been delivering licenses to some residents who are unable to come in themselves.

Gaffney predicted a bleak future for the wardens, as well as for town justices and clerks, after the new order begins to take effect. Gaffney was quoted recently as saying "If they don't have their license (by Wednesday), I guess I have no other choice under this State edict but to order them into court."

Tivoli Board Proclaims Week For Boy Scouts

TIVOLI — The Tivoli Village Board proclaimed Feb. 7-13 Boy Scout Week at its Monday evening meeting, at the request of the Dutchess County Chapter of Boy Scouts of America.

March 17 was designated Grievance Day, with village offices open to residents from 6-9 p.m. The same evening will be used by board members for a meeting with an engineer to discuss the village well site.

Albert Trezza of Red Hook was appointed assistant village justice, to take over when justice Joseph Graham is not available. Trezza will not be paid by the village.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, FEBRUARY 10, 1970

The Lenten Season

Ash Wednesday, tomorrow, marks the beginning of Lent, which will be observed by Christians throughout the world. During the Lenten season, there will be special church services and for many it will be a time of fast, abstinence, prayer and meditation.

The doctrines of love and self-sacrifice, which Christ taught, will be recalled by devout people during the period which ends on Easter. Observance will be manifest in aid to the destitute and homeless of other countries. One of the voluntary agencies engaged in this work is the American Catholic Overseas Aid Fund. The appeal has two phases: Classroom collections by students in Catholic schools and colleges and the adult campaign March 1 to 8, which will conclude with a money collection in all Catholic Churches in the New York Archdiocese. Last year this agency shipped overseas and distributed to the needy in 74 countries 549,965 tons of relief supplies valued at $113 million.

Proper observance of Lent can bring us to Easter with rejoicing at the commemoration of the resurrection, which can enrich us all our lives.

The Housing Squeeze

Perhaps the most obvious loss due to the inflation is new housing. Everyone is aware of the fact that high interest has all but dried up mortgage money and slowed down new housing. New construction is almost nonexistent. Sufficient funds for modernization to reclaim and rehabilitate old houses are unavailable. The result is a housing squeeze that is almost nationwide.

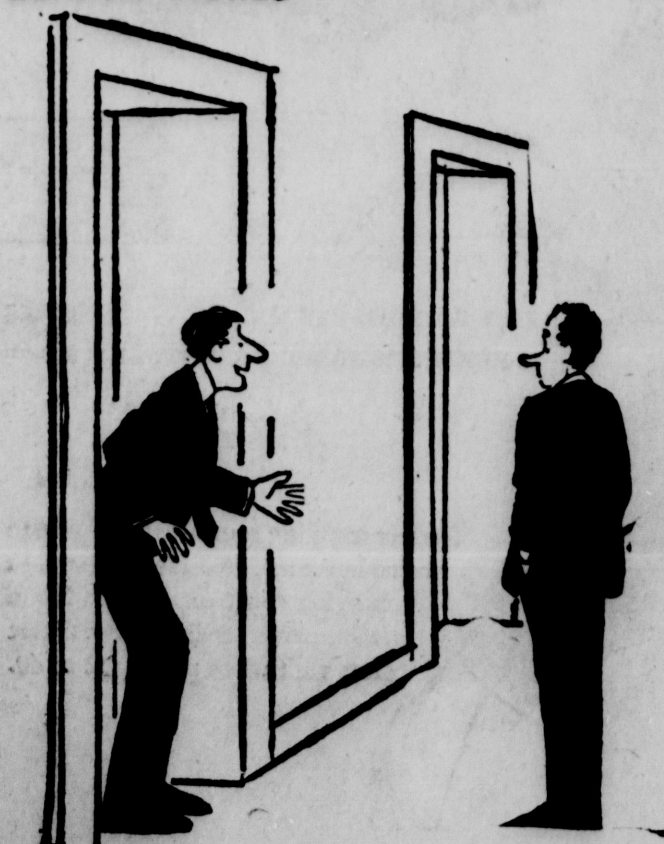

A state senator from Manhattan, Roy Goodman, has an idea for getting federal money for repairs and reclamation. On the theory that New York City's annual housing losses are equivalent to the devastation of 15 hurricane disasters a year, he submitted a resolution to the state legislature asking for federal emergency funds to repair the results of the "disaster" that 15 hurricanes would produce in each year for the next five years.

As Senator Goodman sees it, 75,000 persons would lose their housing in the period. The money would go to eight "disaster areas" in the city, all of them slums. It is in the slums that deterioration is worse and living space is lost each year because there are no replacements for those that are worn out and become uninhabitable. Making them disaster areas is an original approach and could be a means of reclaiming them, if the idea is accepted by the federal government.

If New York loses that much housing every year, the rest of the country loses 20 times as much for the same reason—that is, housing for 1.5 million people. That is just for housing no longer habitable. When housing for new families is added, the demand is several times greater. We should all be thinking along original lines to get moving on new and reclaimed housing to fill the need.

The Mineola, N. Y., housewife who flew the American flag upside down, said she knew it was a distress symbol and she meant it to show "that the country is in distress." She called herself a "living room liberal, complaining about the war but doing nothing about it." Her choice of action was ineffective. Neighbors were not persuaded by her example, they were simply annoyed.

David Lawrence Says
New Mood of Isolationism
Here Can Cause World Crisis

WASHINGTON — Is America getting ready to abandon the world to the brutishness of dictatorships and the inhumanity of despotic governments?

These were some of the challenging questions underlying former President Johnson's candid talk to the American people over CBS television last Friday night. He told of his struggles to find a way to bring the North Vietnamese to the peace table and of his halt of the bombing of North Vietnam in a desperate attempt to impress the enemy with his sincerity of purpose. He said Congress had given him in 1964, through the almost unanimously approved Gulf of Tonkin resolution, the power and authority to take "whatever action may be necessary to protect our forces and to prevent aggression," but he declared he didn't use that power until 1965. He then added:

"I tried to get them (the North Vietnamese) not to infiltrate. But they were determined to do one thing, and that's take over this little country. And if they take that one over, they were determined to take over others in my judgment, just as Hitler was."

"We have an alliance — we've got 40 of them. And the American people had better stop, look and listen on this. They have supported, they have approved through their representatives more than 40 alliances which represent the word of honor of the United States. Now we either ought to get out of those alliances, tear them up and say we won't keep our word — or we ought to carry it out."

What Lyndon Johnson is putting his finger on is a mood of new isolationism which is growing up in the United States that can, as in the past, cause trouble and lead to serious consequences in the world. A committee of the Democratic Party, for instance, is this very week advocating complete withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam and suggesting that it be done in 18 months. The committee, which is headed by former Ambassador Averell Harriman, says in part:

"Our national interests require that the war in Vietnam be brought to a close at the earliest possible moment. The loss of life, the diversion of resources from critical domestic needs and the disunity of our country must be ended."

"U.S. withdrawal should not be dependent upon the progress of the Paris Peace talks, the level of violence or the progress of so-called Vietnamization. It should depend wholly and exclusively upon the interests and policy of the United States."

Once the smaller nations begin to feel that the United States cannot be relied upon to uphold the rights of self-determination, a wave of fear will sweep the world. The major communist countries will see opportunities to reach out not only in Asia but in Europe and Latin America to wield their power of subversion and aggression. Former President Johnson, during the course of his TV talk last week, also made this observation:

"We have said from the very beginning that all of us believed that Hitler's aggression almost destroyed the world. And we believe that Communist aggression will destroy it if somebody doesn't stand up to it."

Unfortunately, the United Nations has been a failure. There are provisions in its charter which allow for international action when any nation engages in acts of aggression. The Vietnam War would never have required 550,000 American troops at any time if the U.N. had done its job. A distribution of manpower among 10 or 20 nations, with perhaps an American as military commander and a staff composed of officers from various countries, could have proved an efficient counter-force against North Vietnam's aggression.

Why hasn't this happened? Perhaps because the Soviet Union has a veto power in the Security Council. But collective action to thwart aggression can also be taken under article 51 of the U.N. Charter. It is time that the small nations of the world — all of which have votes in the assembly — begin to realize that a mechanism against aggression is necessary to their survival.

A country of this size and weight is going to affect all surrounding countries, again, irrespective of what we do. Therefore, if it is true that the big problem of the next 20 years is to build more permanent peace, then it seems to us impossible to build a peace, which we would define as something other than just the avoidance of crisis, by simply ignoring these 800 million people. Whether they are aggressive or relatively peaceful or something in between is bound to affect the whole structure of Asia and of many other parts (of the world).

Nor do we overestimate what we can do by unilateral action toward them. They will make their decisions on the basis of their conception of their needs and of their ideology. But to the degree that their actions can be influenced by ours, we are prepared to engage in a dialogue with them.

The more a reporter goes into this matter, the clearer it becomes that no one expects talking with Peking will be easy, including the men who recommended the approach.

"One special problem of dealing with China — communism apart," says a foreign affairs specialist with years in the business, "is that it has no experience in conducting foreign policy with equals. China has been either dominant or subjected."

Jack Anderson Says
Sewage and Muck Dumped Into Ocean Kills All Sea Life

WASHINGTON — For 40 years, sludge from sewage plants in the New York area has been hauled by barge outside New York harbor and dumped unceremoniously into the ocean.

Now an alarming new report has shown that the practice—which is widespread along America's coastal areas—has destroyed all sea life for miles around the dumping point.

The study lends credence to the warnings of ecologists that the increasing use of the ocean as a national waste dump could eradicate all life in the country's coastal waters within a half-century.

The report was commissioned by the Army Engineers to determine whether licenses should continue to be granted for offshore dumping around New York and other coastal cities.

The study also found that the offshore dumping of muck, dredged from harbor channels and river bottoms in the New York area, has an equally devastating effect on marine life.

The sewage sludge is solid residue from 19 metropolitan New York waste treatment plants. More than four million tons of it are emptied into the Atlantic every year at a point about seven miles from both the New Jersey and Long Island shores.

Ordinarily, these waters would be teeming with shellfish and other sea life. But the researchers found that in a 14-square-mile area around the dumping point, most marine life has vanished.

In one five-square-mile area, there was no sign of life whatsoever. Even durable varieties of sea worms, which normally survive in polluted water, had been killed off.

The report found further that marine life had been virtually wiped out in still another five-square-mile area where muck dredged from nearby harbor and river bottoms had been deposited.

This information comes at a time when both industries and municipalities are looking increasingly toward the oceans as a possible cheap solution to the pollution problems that have turned the nation's inland waters into open sewers.

If the damage to sea life from sludge, which is at least partially treated, can be so severe, then raw sewage from industrial plants and city sewers poses an even greater threat.

Producers of vegetables and fruits pay the Agriculture Department $10.8 million a year from their own pockets to make sure their products are accurately graded. But the lords of the tobacco industry get a free inspection job from Agriculture.

As a result, the taxpayer paid $2.9 million in 1969 so that the Agriculture Department could inspect tobacco for quality, leaf location and color of leaf—everything but how many puffs it takes for a full-fledged case of lung cancer or emphysema.

The tobacco program has been quietly sinking tax dollars in smoke in this manner since 1935. Only cotton gets the same sort of free inspection service.

The Nixon administration has asked that the tobacco industry fund its own way. But the tobacco interests have hidden power on Capitol Hill.

The Georgia Republican

protested in a widely distributed press handout that he is not working with mutual fund lobbyists to fleece the family-size investor.

Apparently, he didn't expect reporters to look beyond his press release. Some took the trouble, however, to check the 952-page hearing record of the House Commerce and Finance Subcommittee on which Fletcher serves.

It was before this subcommittee that the mutual fund lobby made a last stand for self-regulation in face of the Securities and Exchange Commission's efforts to bring some small reform to the industry. No one fought more doggedly to kill the SEC bill than Thompson.

Actually, he swung his club more heavily than did the lobbyists, themselves.

"I happen to be a person, unless I see a need for legislation," he said after hearing detailed evidence of the need for legislation, indeed, even after some of the lobbyists had agreed to go along with the bill.

"There has been a lack of any showing of a necessity for any legislation of this sort," he remarked smack in the face of SEC testimony on the misleading, confusing and fleecing of unsuspecting investors.

"I want to see a showing where someone has been abused," he complained after the SEC had told of how some funds siphoned off 50 per cent of the investor's first year's payments as "sales commissions."

Fletcher Thompson's small-investor constituents may want to read for themselves these and many more of his statements in the 972-page record—instead of his public relations bombast about what he does for fund buyers.

Diminishing U. S. Involvement

Laos—Not Another Vietnam

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Something is seriously out of joint about the notion being generated by Senate doves and others that the American role in Laos is being elevated to a level which might make the war there "another Vietnam" for us.

Indeed, the way the case is being put by some critics comes perilously close to reckless irresponsibility. The weight of the charges has to do with "escalating" the air war in Laos, increasing the use of helicopters to ferry Laotian troops and perform other functions and stepping up the activities of U.S. "advisers" to the point where they are virtually running the war against Communist forces in that country.

From such evidence as can be ascertained, it seems plain enough that at least from time to time if not continuously, there has been an enlargement of our military pace in Laos.

But that evidence needs to be examined very carefully and to be put in the fullest perspective. Before exploring in some detail the matter of air activity and other U.S. endeavors, I would like to deal with the contention that this effort is likely to involve America in "another Vietnam."

To have any real meaning to the citizen at home, that claim must include the idea that we might introduce at some future time a very substantial ground combat force on Laotian soil.

According to some accounts, we are alleged at present to have some 2,150 U.S. advisers and other ground aides in Laos, nearly all billed as "civilians" whatever their backgrounds or military experience.

You do not have to contest these figures. You can accept the fact, and it is a fact, that these U.S. participants may be doing a lot of things in Laos which this government does not want to acknowledge in any way.

But that does not mean President Nixon is on the verge, secretly, in the judgment of some critics—of involving us in such manner that "escalation into another Vietnam" is just a matter of time.

The enforcing logic underlying the President's unilateral withdrawal of ground combat soldiers from Vietnam is its political necessity in a nation which has grown weary and angry over a conflict that for years has seemed to go nowhere.

It is hardly sensible to imagine that Nixon, who knows the American people no longer wish to pay heavy cost in lives and money in that indecisive war, would quickly turn around and plunge us into another exactly like it or worse.

For him to announce, or even simply have it discovered, that he on some future date had placed, say, 5,000 U.S. ground troops in Laos would be a slashing of his wrist politically. It most probably would doom his party's chances in the 1970 elections and his own prospects of reelection in 1972.

Moreover, he is flatly on the record, in the repeated enunciation of his Guam doctrine, against more Vietnams or any kind of U.S. activity in Asia which could involve the use of American ground manpower on foreign soil.

Even if there were not a little thing called the Church amendment, which Congress adopted to bar him specifically from planting U.S. soldiers in any new engagement, Nixon's strongly proclaimed commitment to limit the country's future role in foreign conflicts would seem to preclude embroiling us that way.

Since it is grossly impolitic by Nixon's obviously clear understanding of this country's mood, since it runs counter to the Church amendment and represents a 100 per cent turnaround from the President's doctrine of diminishing Asian involvement, the idea of Laos being allowed to become another Vietnam seems patently ridiculous.

There probably was a greater chance of that in 1962, when the late President Kennedy for a time stationed 5,000 U.S. troops on the Thailand-Laos border and that presently eminent dove, Averell Harriman, was urging him to put at least a modest token force on Laotian soil.

Their Gamble Builds Hope

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) — Throughout the past year several dozen American women have made an agonizing decision — to gamble on their husbands' lives.

The women are wives of servicemen missing in action (MIA) in the Vietnam war. And their decision has been to do whatever necessary, to prod however necessary, in a desperate attempt to focus attention on their grief.

Since 1961 more than 1,350 U.S. combatants have been lost in the war. Evidence has been received that at least 426 of them are alive as North Vietnamese prisoners. But as for the rest, nothing is known.

The enemy, in violation of worldwide moral and legal agreements, refuses to cooperate. The families have received no word at all — even though in some cases they've been waiting for as long as four years.

So the MIA wives, at the limit of their endurance, have grouped together to knock for help at doors from Capitol

Hill to Moscow.

This knocking has, of course, been the risky part.

Says one MIA wife, voice breaking:

"I think about the consequences all the time. It would be so easy for them (the North Vietnamese) to take reciprocal action against our husbands. Since they don't let on they have captured most of our men anyway, they could easily torture or kill them — and nobody would ever know."

In spite of this danger, though, the MIA wives' campaign continues. It's even growing. Leaders estimate about 100 women now actively participate. Many official doors have slammed on their fingers, but the wives believe they have done some good.

Says Mrs. Sybil Stockdale of Coronado, Calif.:

"One of our immediate objectives has been to make the world aware of the whole situation. And I think we've been able to help do this. I feel most people now realize how much the wives of the missing men are suffering. Mrs. Stockdale is a mother of four and wife of a Naval Air captain missing since 1965. She's also the senior member of the MIA wives' movement. She began criticizing enemy treatment of MIAs and prisoners in late 1968.

At first the criticism was hesitant and muted because "I was afraid the Communists might take it out on my husband." But after a year's frantic activism, she now feels her efforts have been worth the risk.

She says the morale of those men who are prisoners in North Vietnam may have been bolstered by the MIA wives. Prisoners who have been voluntarily returned to the U.S. have reported as much. They say captives remaining behind want wives to do everything possible to dramatize the situation.

She says the morale of the MIA wives has been bolstered also. Nothing can change the waiting, the uncertainty, the look of fatherless children — but Mrs. Stockdale says the wives' campaign has at least given some new hope. "Doing something, doing anything, is far better than just doing nothing."

State Aid to Schools
Editor, The Freeman

Members of the Saugerties Teachers Association welcome the entry of Ulster County School Boards and the Parent Teachers Associations into the drive to secure repeal of the cuts in state-aid to local school districts in 1969 under Chapter 183 of the Education Law.

The drive to secure repeal of Chapter 183 is an effort in which the STA has assumed a leading role for more than a year.

A year ago the STA prepared and delivered to the administration of our school district a 17-minute tape-slide presentation on the tremendous impact Governor Rockefeller's proposed budget cut-back would have on real property taxpayers, pupils, and teachers.

A year ago in the Main Street School cafeteria the STA conducted a "write-in" for our members, supplying stationery, postage, data, and the addresses of key legislative personnel.

The STA developed a telegram campaign to key legislators.

A year ago, the then STA public relations chairman,

William Carman, prepared a series of press releases on how hard the real property owners were going to be hit by the governor's cut in education although he was expanding the rest of his budget by 16 percent. In "tight budget years" state priorities are truly determined. Last year the real property taxpayers and the public schools of NYS were pushed way down on the priority list.

The STA welcomes Ulster County School Boards and PTA's into the struggle for relief of the real property taxpayer and the maintenance and improvement of educational programs. We promise to continue our efforts to get the state to assume half of school district costs for a district of average wealth, to increase the state-aid ceiling to $800 per child, to educate the public as to the nearly $200,000 increase forced upon Saugerties district taxpayers because of Chapter 183, and to urge all citizens to seek repeal of Chapter 183.

Sincerely yours,
RICHARD J. LUTHER,
Chairman STA Public Relations Committee

TODAY'S THOUGHT

By JIM GILPATRIC

Authors of fiction have never created a comparable character to capture the admiration and adulation reserved for Lincoln in history. Such memorialization has never happened before and probably will never happen again. Edwin M. Stanton certainly made a prophetic statement following Lincoln's death when he sadly said, "Now he belongs to the ages."

On Lincoln's birthday, we honor a man who rose from disheartening poverty to become one of the greatest and most revered men among men in history. His singular humility would prompt him to dislike the homage America gives him. Defeats and disappointments plagued him in his lifetime. Events and people gave him ample reason to be discouraged and resentful. He conquered discouragement, resisted resentment. A most fitting eulogy was expressed by Ralph Waldo Emerson—"His heart was as great as the world, but there was no room in it to hold the memory of a wrong."

SCOUTS MEET GOVERNOR — The Boy Scouts made their annual report to Governor Rockefeller on Monday. The Governor introduced them to Miss Winona Margery Haury, Miss American Indian, who was visiting Rockefeller as part of a nationwide tour. The pair sat among a group of Cub Scouts chatting and signing dozens of autographs. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Police Believe Drugs Used by Man on Bridge

NEW YORK (AP) — A young Queensborough Bridge in near freezing rain and brought down the man, identified tentatively as Harry Harner, 20, of Mount Morris, N.Y. A police spokesman said the man "appeared to be on some type of hallucinogenic drug and was very close to the edge."

Three patrolmen scaled the 270-foot Manhattan tower of the mobile on the bridge about mid night and climbed the tower, police said.

He was taken to Bellevue Hospital for observation.

Police said Harner mumbled something about being "on a bad trip" and wanting to "end it all" as he was rescued from the bridge tower.

Heisting by Pentagon Is Proxmire Charge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today the Pentagon has "usurped," "absorbed" or "heisted" $10 billion in savings that should have resulted from defense spending cuts.

In a figure-laden speech prepared for delivery to the Senate, Proxmire said announced or projected savings in defense spending for next fiscal year amount to $25 billion.

He subtracted from that figure $10 billion allowable for pay increases, inflation, "double counting" and uncontrollable increases and another $5 billion in savings actually reflected in President Nixon's new budget. The result was $10 billion, Proxmire said the Pentagon has "stolen."

"The Pentagon has heisted $10 billion of the peace dividend," he said. "The long-suffering taxpayers have been robbed of $10 billion in tax relief or improved domestic services or a combination of the two."

He said the $10 billion in savings were "eaten up by new weapons systems."

Proxmire said part of the money will go into expansion of the Safeguard antiballistic missile (ABM), some into extra costs of converting the Polaris submarines to the Poseidon system, $3 billion in extra costs for the Air Force's Minuteman missiles, more for the SRAM missile system, more for the new over-the-horizon radar and

Proxmire itemized the $25 billion in gross savings this way:

$16 billion to $17 billion in realized or anticipated cuts in Vietnam spending; $4.5 billion in a 600,000-man cut in military personnel; $1 billion in an announced 150,000-man cut in the Defense Department's civilian payroll; $2 billion through more efficient procurement; $1 billion by abandoning the strategy which dictates a defense force capable of fighting simultaneous major wars in Europe and Asia and one brushfire war; and $500 million by closing some military bases.

"Somewhere along the line, even after generous allowances are made for inflation and pay raises, double counting and uncontrollable items, we lost about $10 billion," Proxmire said.

"Instead of making real savings by improving the procurement of weapons systems, by using personnel more efficiently and by cutting back on the frills and unnecessary prerequisites of the military establishment, the Pentagon is absorbing for its own use about $10 billion of the savings," Proxmire said.

Physical Defects Study Is First for Task Force

SAUGERTIES
Correction of physical defects in students was the first study initiated at the first meeting of a Community Task Force appointed by Saugerties Board of Education held recently at the Main Street School cafeteria.

The Task Force was formed to study equal educational opportunity in the Saugerties system.

Present were Josh Randall, Albert Conte, Robert Martin, the Rev. Frederick Imhoff, the Rev. Joseph Hamilton, Mrs. Velma

Wright, Robert Emery, Mrs. Mary Messina, Mrs. Marilyn Putnam, Jack Keeley, Supervisor Michael Schovel, Roy Alquist, Vernon Joe Benjamin, Miss May Evans, Sister Edwina, Patrick Buongiorno, Robert Moser, Daniel Lee, David Cunningham, Board President Robert Herb, and Superintendent of Schools Dr. Dexter O. Arnold.

Mrs. Velma Wright of the Saugerties Neighborhood Center agreed to act as secretary.

David Cunningham, administrative assistant for the district, acted as chairman of the meeting, and outlined for the members those activities and programs of the school system which attempts to provide equal educational opportunity for all pupils.

A lively discussion followed, and it was decided that at its next meeting, set for March 23, the group would study the problem of correction of physical defects found in pupils as a result of various health checks performed during the school year. This was deemed of concern since the June report of 1969 indicated that 977 health defects had been identified and reported to parents, but only 119 of these had been corrected, and 267 others were under care at the time of the report.

At the March meeting, two of the school nurse-teachers, and Miss May Evans, director of Pupil Personnel Services, will inform the Task Force of the procedures used in identifying and referring health problems to parents, and the difficulties involved in getting defects corrected and report of such action returned to the school.

Local Chess Men Fare Well, One Defeats Master

WOODSTOCK, N.Y. (AP)—Four members of the Woodstock Chess Club took part last week in a simultaneous exhibition given by Grandmaster Arthur Bisquiere at the IBM Country Club in Poughkeepsie.

In simultaneous exhibitions a very strong player (grandmaster) is the highest rank a chess player can attain plays many weaker players at the same time. This naturally makes it impossible for the strong player to play his best in any of the games.

In this exhibition Bisquiere played 45 games, winning 37, losing 5, and drawing 3. The Woodstock Club has members from the Poughkeepsie area because the chess club in Woodstock Club scored 1½ points out of a possible 4, with the club member Michael Murphy winning 3½ points.

Wappingers beating Bisquiere during February will receive the exhibition's biggest surprise. Eugene Meyer of Woodstock drew, while Victor Jorgensen lost in March.

LET'S CLEAR UP A FEW THINGS

Some people seem to have the impression that home heating oil is one the causes of air pollution. Nothing could be further from the truth.

HERE ARE THE FACTS . . .

The sulphur content of home heating oil (distillate fuel) is infinitesimal.

Most of the pollutants in our larger cities are caused, not by home heating oil, but by coal and some of the heavy industrial fuels used by utilities, institutions and large manufacturing concerns. Heavy oils are known as residual oils.

Here in the Hudson Valley most of the oil used is distillate, the kind you burn in your home. Oil delivers clean heat unsurpassed by any other type of fuel, be it electricity or gas.

Our industry is continually working on research to eliminate or reduce any possible trace of air pollution from the heavier fuels and is co-operating 100% with local, state and federal governments.

In The Meantime It Is Important For You To Know That Home Heating Oil Is Not A Cause of Air Pollution

Fallout Shelter Review—Some Are Ready, More Needed

KINGSTON
By LYNN MULVANEY

Where would Ulster County residents go to seek shelter in the event of a nuclear attack? Where are the safe fallout spaces? The stocked ones?

The cement mine on Delaware Avenue would provide perfect safety for 8,000 persons in the City of Kingston, according to Charles L. Arnold, Ulster County director of Civil Defense. So would another cement mine in Rosendale which could accommodate 92,000 persons although the facility is now under lease and Civil Defense has been refused a license to use this facility. Arnold said however that Rosendale residents will be sheltered there if necessary.

A survey of Ulster County made last summer by the Army Corps of Engineers indicated that there are a total of 35,335 stocked spaces in the county. Based on an estimated population of 140,000 people, "we lack about 100,000 safe stocked shelter spaces," Arnold explained.

In his annual report to Lt. Gen. M. J. Asenio, director of State Civil Defense, Arnold commented further that "the apathy of the general public continues even with the unrest throughout the world. Let us hope differences will be resolved without war and that Civil Defense is preparing for a black day that will never come."

The report also indicates that the cement mine in Kingston cannot be stocked at the present time because of vandalism. Arnold said that past efforts to gain cooperation from the city in stemming the vandalism have failed but that he will continue to seek aid in this direction.

Arnold said there is also a large warehouse in Ellenville that would shelter 730 people.

A plan has also been drawn up by the Ulster Civil Defense office giving the location of the public shelters in Ulster County and the City of Kingston. It is considered an interim plan.

Each township in the county is listed with the location of the public shelters in the township and the number of people that can be accommodated in each.

Once additional shelter spaces can be found and incorporated in the plan, the revised edition will be published and distributed. It will be known as the Community Shelter Plan.

With regard to training, Arnold reports that it is a continuing program. Under the law all municipal employees, county, town, village and city, are automatically a part of Civil Defense in an emergency.

The State Employment Service, while it is a state service is also part of the Ulster County Civil Defense.

Training of civil defense is done as a whole mostly by exercises consisting of a progressing period of simulated tension followed by a simulated attack period. These exercises are ordered by the State Civil Defense Commission and usually consist of three phases each a month apart with a critique at the end of each phase.

Training of separate branches of the county CD service is also a continuing program. All county department heads are in training all the time as their daily work is basically what they would be doing in an emergency.

The various volunteer services hold drills and classes during the year.

The chiefs of radiological service are engaged in training people in measuring and evaluation of fallout. They also make checks every six months of sets of instruments in the fixed monitoring stations. Warning and communications instruments are tested daily.

Civil Defense Auxiliary Police received nearly 1,000 man hours of training in 1969. It took the form of being mainly traffic control at concerts, parades, the Lions Exposition and the Halloween patrol. Other branches of the CD services receive training during the year at various times.

Various Reasons Given for Ulster County Derailments

By TIM SCHUSTER

NEW YORK — Transportation Superintendent G.T. Dailey of Penn Central Railroad enumerated several reasons why freight trains become derailed, in a letter answering a Freeman inquiry about the rash of derailments in this vicinity.

He could give no specific reasons pertaining to particular derailments, and indeed claimed that he had no records of two area derailments May 1 or Nov. 9.

On May 1, 47 cars derailed at Boices Lane, Town of Ulster, holding up IBM-bound traffic for hours. On Nov. 9, a coal freight overturned in Kingston, dumping coal on the ground, and has not since been rerailed.

"Concerning the cars on the ground in the area of the derailments since Nov. 12," wrote Dailey, "we have made plans on several occasions to remove the equipment but have been restricted due to severe weather conditions."

He noted that "these conditions have not improved as yet and as soon as practical we will remove these cars."

Arthur Harrison, with Penn

Central public relations, said that his understanding was that the delay in rerailling train because they are on a main line, and the work would tie up the railroad's operations.

Some complaints were received with regard to some derailments because the overturned cars were on private property.

The Freeman has record of at least seven Penn Central train derailments within a seven month span from May to December, 1969.

Dailey's given reasons for freight train derailments said,

"In the transportation of freight there are many moving parts in addition to the facilities which are inspected on a regular basis to insure standards are maintained."

"In addition, the volume by weight requires equipment and facilities to meet specifications or the transport of large quantities. It can be appreciated that with so many factors involved, even with constant inspections and maintenance situations have developed on account of metal fatigue, etc."

He stated, in effect saying that there are too many variables to check to make sure that equipment failure does not occur. Original plans to remove derailed cars from Rondout and from Ulster Jan. 5 were curtailed because of difficulty with weather conditions, according to Harrison.

NEGRO HISTORY BOOKS — An array of volumes on Negro history and achievement are in a special display at M. Clifford Miller School this week in conjunction with Negro History. Examining the exhibit are (L-R) the Rev. John H. Gilmore, director of the Kingston Human Relations Commission; Mrs. G. Bloom, librarian and Donald Anderson, principal. A number of local events are planned as part of the national observance. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Directors and director of public relations until August 1961 when she joined the staff of the Bureau for Mentally Handicapped Children. She also represented Ulster County on the State Board of Governors, New York State Association for Retarded Children, and served as a member of the State Education Committee. She was also President of Ulster County Girl Scout Council.

The announcement of Mrs. Buehring as guest speaker was made at a recent meeting of the Ulster County Chapter of the New York State Teachers Association for the Mentally Handicapped, Inc.

The meeting, presided over by new elected president Edward

Jabs, Saugerties Special Education teacher, emphasized the role that the county chapter is to play in the formation of the 1970 New York State Special Olympics. One thousand youngsters are expected to participate in this year's state meet. This will involve approximately 10,000 students in the local events to be run in 30 meets across the state this May. The Jaycees and the New York State Association for Teachers of the Mentally Handicapped, Inc. will run these local meets and help inaugurate the training programs, preparing our students for Olympic competition.

ALBANY—Area residents have successfully completed the State Education Department examinations for registered professional nurses and licensed practical nurses.

Spiro Raps Dems on TV Rebuttal

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew says the Democrats' televised rebuttal to President Nixon's State of the Union message "was like listening to germs complain about disease."

In a speech Monday night at a fund-raising dinner for Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann, Agnew spoke about the Democrats' hour of criticism on national television Sunday.

"To hear the publishers of the Great Society and the New Frontier complain of overspending was like listening to germs complain about disease," Agnew said. "It was superb fantasy."

As the vice president spoke to 2,500 persons attending the $50-a-plate dinner, about 600

antiwar protesters distributed leaflets and chanted, "Feed more, stop the war" outside the building.

Agnew was whisked in and out of the auditorium through side entrances and did not encounter the demonstrators.

Agnew said of the Democrat show, "It was a fabulous presentation—pure unadulterated fable. It is hard to clean a floor when a group of muddy-footed Congressmen keep tracking through the kitchen looking for the cookie jar."

He said the blame for the nation's crime problem must rest with the Democratic-controlled Congress because the President's anticrime bills "lie fallow on (Capitol) Hill, untouched by human hands."

Woman Ordered Before Judge

NEW YORK (UPI)—A woman researcher for Newsweek magazine was ordered to appear before Justice John Murtagh today for having applauded a courtroom outburst by Black Panthers during their pretrial hearing on conspiracy charges.

Miss Sheila Young, 24, who used her press card to attend the hearing, said afterward her behavior was "unprofessional."

"I am black," Miss Young said, "and I can't help but feel that what that guy said was right. This trial is a sham."

The judge said she applauded after an outburst in which one of the defendants shouted at Murtagh: "You should have a white robe on, with a hood on it."

The judge summoned the young woman to the bench and here at 10:15 a.m. The court warns you it has under advisement holding you in summary contempt on this court."

A statement from Newsweek said Miss Young had attended the trial on her own initiative. The statement said the magazine understood the young woman intended to apologize to the judge today.

Most of Monday's trial proceedings were confined to attempts by defense lawyers to prove that evidence to be used against the Panthers was obtained illegally.

The 13 defendants are charged with conspiracy to bomb department stores, police stations and a variety of other facilities in the city.

Organ Stolen In Port Ewen

PORT EWEN—Wall's Pianos and Organs Inc., Port Ewen, was burglarized for the second time within a year Sunday night or Monday, with the estimated loss set at $1,445, according to a report of the Ulster County Sheriff's Department.

Entry was gained by breaking through a rear door. Among items taken was a Wurlitzer organ, valued at $1,095, tape recorders, speakers and other equipment.

Deputy Robert Jordan investigated.

Legislation For Contempt Is Introduced

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Legislation to protect reporters from being cited for contempt if they refuse to reveal sources of information was introduced in the legislature Monday.

The bill has eight co-sponsors and the backing of the New York Reporters Association, the New York State Publishers Association, and the New York State Press Association.

The measure would amend the civil rights law so that newsmen for the print or broadcast media could not be found in contempt for refusing to disclose sources of information to courts, legislative or administrative bodies.

Assemblyman Arthur D. Kremer, D-Long Beach, said current law provides for contempt citations for anyone, including reporters, who fail to give information to the agencies.

Kremer said the exemption would encourage reporters "to seek out the truth without fear of reprisal," although it would not protect them from libel or slander actions if stories are "malicious."

The same bill has failed in past years, but the question of protecting news sources has become topical recently, particularly involving U.S. Atty. Gen. John Mitchell.

"We think the time is right this year," Kremer said. Twelve other states have similar laws.

Goodell Boomed While Speaking

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Charles E. Goodell, R-N.Y., was booed and heckled while speaking at the Park Republican Club in Brooklyn.

The incident occurred when 70 members of an audience of 150 disagreed Monday night with the senator's criticism of the Vietnam war.

The dissidents were members of Young Americans for Freedom, a conservative student group.

UCCC Drubs Sullivan, 92-38, for 18th Victory

REDUCED TO ONLOOKERS — Three members of the United States team — Billy Kidd (C) of Sowe, Vt.; Hank Kashiwa (L) of Old Forge and Spider Sabich (R) Kyburg, Calif. watch remainder of field after finishing 30, 32nd and 35th, respectively in men's giant slalom in World Alpine Ski Championships Monday at Val Gardena, Italy. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Augert Alpine Pick

VAL GARDENA, Italy (UPI) — Karl Schranz of Austria was in a good position to win the giant slalom today, but it was Frenchman Jean-Noel Augert who holds the favorite's role for the world alpine ski championship.

Schranz, the 31-year-old innkeeper who is defending World Cup champion, won the first heat of the giant slalom Monday and if he holds out should be on top of the 93-man contingent that pushes off for the second heat.

Augert won the opening day slalom event. A victory in the upcoming downhill would probably clinch the title for the French skier. Schranz was disqualified in the slalom for missing a gate.

Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt. ruined his chances for the combined title when he came in a poor 30th during the first heat of the giant slalom. Only a spectacular clocking in today's second heat could alter the situation.

Schranz left the course quickly after his first heat victory. He spent the intervening time between then and his return to the slopes resting in bed while his rivals complained to any who would listen about the length of the course.

Schranz just hopes his lead of 3-10ths of a second over teammate Werner Bleiner and his full second on Dumeng Giovanoli of Switzerland will be enough.

The form, then, suggests Austria will be back in the winners column after the field takes off on its second journey over the 1,490 meters (4,917 feet) course, which drops 447 meters (1,464 feet).

Schranz said his first aim is to retain his World Cup title. He has his sights set on the downhill crown which ends the championships on Sunday.

He has trailed Frenchman

Patrick Russel and Italy's Gustavo Thoeni all season, but a win today will be worth 25 points to him under the complicated cup formula, which will give him 148 points to put him eight ahead of his rivals.

The best three circuit results in each discipline count. Schranz has scored 31 out of a possible 75 in the giant slalom where he has only one win this season, while Russel, also with one win but two seconds, has 63 out of 75. The Frenchman has no chance of earning points today, unless he can come from 14th place to win.

Thoeni already has maximum giant slalom points with three wins in the discipline this season. His fall at the second gate Monday in the event he was favored to win, did not effect his cup position.

Schranz clocked 2:15.15 minutes Monday to post the best time. Bleiner did 2:15.45, while Giovanoli was caught in 2:16.11.

By JIM MASSA

LIBERTY — Ulster County Community College's lopsided drubbing of Sullivan Community, 92-38, here Monday night proved one point. Coach Mike Perry appears to have ironed out the bugs affecting the team on offense and defense since the departure of his star center, Gary Kirkwood. The win, incidentally, was the 18th in 20 starts this season for the Senators.

"Linell Marshall played a fine game for us and seems to have gained some confidence in himself," said Coach Perry. Glenn Berry and Tony Pough looked better than in recent games. "Jerry Moss was playing with an injury and I pulled him when we got safely ahead, for a rest," he added.

Berry led the Senators scoring with 19 points. Marshall pumped in 18 points and Moss added 16. Eight of Marshall's points came as a result of good positioning for the offensive rebound.

No Contest — It took the Senators just over two minutes to score. (Marshall hit for a basket) but it took Sullivan seven minutes and 52 seconds to score its first field goal, as the Senators were out to play good defense, and they did. Sullivan only scored four other field goals in the first half at the 11:45, 4:05, 1:40 and 1:10 marks.

Meanwhile, the Senators pumped in 46 points and took a 46-18, halftime lead to the locker room. Ulster led 21-7, with 9:50 to go in the first half and the victory was never in doubt as the lead continued to mount throughout the game.

New Ulster Record — The Senators accomplished a new record in limiting Sullivan to just 38 points. Checking back we found that last year's team held Westchester to just 46 points, but happened to lose the game as they came up with only 43 points. The low of 38 points has dropped the overall Ulster defense to an all-time low of 65.3. The Senators also dropped its defense within the conference to just 58.6.

The second half was no different from the first as Ulster outscored Sullivan 46-20, using the substitutes for over 10 minutes.

Sidibars: Moss, as far as we are concerned, is the best all-around player to ever play at Ulster County Community College. Ulster hit on 42 of 89 field goal attempts for a 47 percent average, while Sullivan connected on only 14 of 73, for a 19 percent average. The turnovers were even at 19 each, but Ulster took the edge in rebounds 71 to 42. Will somebody tell the Ulster cheerleading captain, that the team will be going to Hutchinson, Kansas, and not to Kansas City. At least you got the message across, captain. The first meeting of Region XV coaches for the tournament selection of teams will take place this Sunday night. Ten teams will be selected and the following Sunday night they will be reduced to the final eight.

It is expected that Ulster, Westchester, Nassau, Suffolk, Staten Island and the host team Orange will be six of the teams in the final eight. Others that will probably be considered for the remaining two positions are Post Junior College New York City, Manhattan, Farmingdale, Sullivan and Rockland. Ulster now has a 8-0 record this year in the MHC and has won 32 of the last 33 league games. The Senators go against Westchester this Friday night at home for the title.

Boxer Is Dog Show Favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — The annual guessing game—one in which nearly everyone is a loser—on the dog that will be sent to the top in the Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show was in full swing today.

With the 1969 champion retired and only two of the six group winners from last year back for another try at the golden bone, the field was regarded as being wide open.

One of the two '69 finalists already has been polished off. That was the old English sheepdog, Ch. Prince Andrew of Sherline, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sherline of Detroit.

He managed to get by his breed but was defeated by Ch. Arriba's Prima Donna, a boxer sent in by Dr. and Mrs. P.J. Pagan and Dr. Theodore S. Fickes of Pelham Manor, N.Y., in the final of the working group.

The other finalist entered from last year is Ch. Renh Lorelei of Charnaron, a toy Manchester terrier owned by Marie Elizabeth O'Neill and her father, Charles, of Philadelphia. Lorelei took the toy group in the 1969 show, and competition in the breed judging today.

Prime Donna, the boxer, a bitch of just slightly over 3 years old, of course, becomes one of the prime favorites for the best-in-show in the guessing game.

Two other finalists were decided. They were Hoolwire Tudor Reliant, a wire fox terrier, owned by Steve Farber of Denver, who won the terrier group and Ch. Star Q's Brass Buttons, a Boston terrier, sent in by Dr. K. Eileen Hite of New York, who captured the non-sporting group.

The toy, hound and sporting dogs will be judged today and the best-in-show will be picked by Anna Katherine Nicholas about 11 p.m., EST.

OCS Tops Red Hook, 52-47

BOICEVILLE — Onteora Central Indians jumped to a quick lead then held off a late surge by visiting Red Hook to score a 52-47 non-league basketball victory here Monday night.

It was the eighth win against

Pape's squad which resumes Ulster County Athletic League (UCAL) tonight at Wallkill.

Ed Mercer and Joe Bush accounted for 35 of the OCS points. Mercer leading with 21 on 10 fields and a free throw. Bush scored 14 on five buckets and four from the charity stripe. Both delivered clutch points after Red Hook pulled to within a point (48-47) with about two minutes left to play.

Bush coolly converted two free throws to open up a 50-47 Onteora lead and Mercer iced the contest with his last deuce of the contest. The OCS defense, meanwhile, throttled every Red Hook effort. Onteora actually won the game from the free throw line with a 12-7 edge. Each team had 20 baskets.

Pat Collins, the crack Red Hook forward, took game honors with 25 points off a dozen baskets and one charity shot. He was the only invader to score in double figures.

Onteora jumped to a 17-7 lead but Red Hook shaved it to 24-20 at halftime and it was tough and go after that.

Crane Still Unbeaten

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Irving Crane, the Rochester, N.Y., automobile executive, who is being dubbed "the mechanic" by spectators, maintained his lead Monday in the World's Pocket Billiards Championships as the $19,500 round-robin tourney reached the half-way mark.

The four-time title holder, competing against 15 of the world's top cue artists including defending champion Ed Kelly, has run up seven consecutive victories without a loss in the meet. His most recent win came Monday over Jimmy Moore, Albuquerque, N.M., 150-104.

Kelly, Las Vegas, stands at 3-4 in the tourney, which runs through Feb. 21.

Pressing Crane for the crown are Richie Florence, 24, Torrance, Calif., in second place at 6-1, and the veteran former three-time title holder Luther Lassiter, Elizabeth City, N.C., in the third position at 5-2. Lassiter outscored Danny Gartner, Newark, N.J., 150-94 Monday, while Florence drew a bye.

Gartner defeated Johnny Ervolino, Brooklyn, 150-62, and Ciero Murphy, Brooklyn, defeated Frank McGown, New York City, 150-133.

Tuesday's schedule includes Lou Butera, Pittsburgh, against Lassiter; Dallas West, Rockford, Ill., against Ervolino; Gartner against Kelly; and Murphy against Danny DiLiberto, Miami.

The State University Wrestling team scored a rare white wash victory over Brooklyn Poly Tech Saturday afternoon, 50-0 to extend its win streak to three.

"We don't usually overpower to many teams, but our boys were a lot better team," said Coach Joe Owens. "Bruce Hartjen, who replaced Gary Ken Neslund is doing a fine job for us and Steve Keene continues to look better," added Owens.

Gary Feinfeld went after Jim Longo's 12 second pin record in the 150 pound class as he dropped his man in 15 seconds, just 3 short of tying it. Longo the only undefeated wrestler on the Hawks squad took 18 seconds to bottle up his opponent in the 126 pound division.

"A FRIEND RECOMMENDED ELECTRIC HEAT FOR MOBILE HOMES..."

says Anthony Moran...

"... So I put it in mine, and I've never been sorry. It's silent, safe and odorless, which is important in compact quarters. I have complete peace of mind about reliability and cost (since my bills have been right on the nail compared to the estimate Central Hudson gave me.)"

Mobile Home, Modern Custom or 18th Century Colonial, Electric Heat is the modern, dependable, comfortable heat. And if you're interested in exactly how much electric heat will cost for your home, call Central Hudson. But don't take our word for it—ask any of our 6,000 customers!

Dear Abby

How to Pay 'Debt'?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune. N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: There's a man who works where I work. We kid around a lot, but he's not a boyfriend or anything like that.

Well, about four months ago I told him he would be real swell looking if he would lose about 30 pounds. Then he said he'd make a deal with me. He would lose 30 pounds if I would give him an "incentive" — like spending the night with him.

I foolishly said it was a deal — never dreaming he'd lose the 30 pounds.

Well, Abby, he has lost 22 pounds, and I know he'll lose the other 8 in no time at all. I never thought I would ever have to pay off. Now what do I do?

DEAR BIGMOUTH: Spend the night with him, and use the time playing records, reading poetry, or just explaining what you meant by "spending the night" with him. If he complains, let him haul you into small claims court.

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible for a man to be in love with two women at the same time?

DEAR JAKE: Yes. And also hazardous.

DEAR ABBY: I know that parents are supposed to treat all their children alike, but we can't help favoring our eldest. Heidi is 16 and she is a beautiful child, inside and out. Heidi is not only a top student, she is helpful around the house, good natured and trustworthy. She's never given us a minute's worry.

Our middle child, Sally, is 13. She is selfish, lazy, and stubborn. Even with tutoring she can't make her grades.

Our youngest, Danny is 9.

He's smarter than both girls put together but he is a little troublemaker. He'd rather lie than tell the truth, and he won't let anybody touch him or kiss him.

Everyone notices that we are partial to Heidi, and we are always getting lectures from the grandparents on how we should "love" all our children the same. But how can we?

FEELING GUILTY
DEAR FEELING: You are reacting in a normal manner. So don't feel guilty. It's not possible to love all one's children equally because all children are not equally "lovable." But concentrate a little more on the least "lovable" — they're the ones who need love the most.

DEAR ABBY: Your "Confidential to MGM" in which you stated that President Nixon ignored YOUR letter, too, was reassuring. Here all along I've been blaming the Post Office Department!

I have written six letters to President Nixon in the past year, and have not received one acknowledgement. All my letters were respectful, tho somewhat critical of his policies.

It would be interesting to learn whether the President and his staff ignore ALL correspondence, or only those letters which are critical of his administration.

A man who continually presses his wife (or girl friend) for every single detail of her past romantic encounters with other men ("tell me the exact words you spoke, the words he spoke, what position were you in at the time, what was he wearing, etc. . .") could be attempting to "live the experi-

Spade Contract Proves Worthy

By Oswald and James Jacoby

doubleton heart turned out to be of no value at the spade contract. At least, it must have been of no value when this hand was played in California, since we assume from the plaintive tone of our correspondent's letter that he didn't bring four spades home as he should have.

Here is the winning play at four spades: Take the first trick with dummy's queen of hearts. Draw trumps with two leads and take a third trump if you feel like it. Then cash the ace and king of hearts in order to discard the six of diamonds from dummy.

Then, if you like finesse, you can take the diamond finesse. You will lose that finesse and your contract, since East will win and return a diamond to force you to attack the clubs. If you want to make the contract, just go right up with the ace of diamonds and lead back the queen. It won't matter who wins the trick. Neither East nor West can lead a club without giving you a sure trick, and a lead of a red card will allow you to ruff in dummy and discard a club from your own hand.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

BELIEFS: (Q) My girl friend and I know a girl who is prejudiced. She is so hard to get along with. We were looking at a magazine and there was a picture of a white woman and a black man holding hands.

She said, "Oh, look, they're holding hands."

My friend said, "Well, what's wrong with that?"

She said, "I wouldn't hold hands with any nigger."

I said, "It's Negro, and why wouldn't you?"

She said, "Well, I just don't think races should mix, that's all."

She made us so mad. I could have hit her right in her big mouth. —Unprejudiced in California.

(A) No matter whether we are black or white, we all have a right to believe what we want to believe. But we should not be obnoxious in expressing our beliefs. And we should not fall into the trap of thinking that those who believe differently from us are either stupid or all wrong or dangerous.

19 AND 15: (Q) I am 19 and I go with this boy who is 15. My mother says I ought to be ashamed of myself and that I am robbing the cradle. Do you agree with her? —Shamed in Dallas.

(A) You have no cause to be ashamed. When we are attracted to someone, age may seem unimportant to us.

But I agree with your mother that the boy you are going with is too young for you to go with regularly.

At your age and his, four years is a big difference. If you were both grownups, it would be a much smaller difference. But you aren't.

ABC Film Plan Could Work

NEW YORK (AP) — Movie fans in the television audience had been spared until recently those tearing decisions: The three networks kept out of each other's way with their feature film reruns.

ABC had Wednesday and Sunday nights; NBC Monday, Tuesday and Saturday; CBS Thursday and Friday.

ABC, which had been having a tough time with a lot of its programs, recently broke the gentlemanly mold. It moved its Wednesday night movie to Monday, and gave it a half-hour start on NBC's movie.

This competitive scheduling may have caused some big living room arguments this week. ABC's feature was a dreadful opus called "The Oscar," but it had a lot of stars, a plot like a nightmarish combination of "Bracken's World" and "Pal Joey," and was as titillating as a movie magazine. NBC showed "The Satan Bug," a science fiction thriller, second rate but with appeal to a male audience.

When the film is attractive, ABC's audience-grabbing device probably will work. In ABC's other midseason switches, only two of the five new programs appear to be winning passing grades with the audience.

"The Johnny Cash Show" was 14th on a list of 89 programs in the most recent Nielsen report, and "The Nanny and the Professor" was about half way down the list. "The Englebert Humperdink Show," Pat Paulsen's comedy program and "Paris 7000" were at the bottom of the list.

Robert Crean, author of tonight's "CBS Playhouse": 9:30-11 EST—has written a play about freedom—at least personal freedom—in his "Day Before Sunday."

The play, seen in a preview, is an impressive vehicle for Uta Hagen, a fine and sensitive actress. She plays a spinster character woman who, in middle life, has dedicated herself to taking care of her family. She has made a home for a sister who from birth has been little more than a vegetable. She has loaned money endlessly to another sister and a habitually over extended brother-in-law. She has paid for a private school education for a niece. The catalyst is a man of about her age who is flying East to attend his son's graduation from the school the niece attends. As the couple's relationship develops and the family makes more demands on her, she has money and emptiness and loneliness of her life become more evident.

Rogers Cancels Tour After Student Woes

TUNIS (UPI)—Anti-American student demonstrations forced Secretary of State William P. Rogers to cancel a visit to Tunis University today on the second stop of his 10-nation African tour.

Although officials said the university visit was called off because of a change in Rogers' schedule, Tunisian security officials said privately it was inadvisable for him to visit the university in view of the demonstrations.

Rogers arrived Monday night from Rabat, Morocco, shortly after more than 100 students tried to march on the American embassy in Tunis. About 2,000 others gathered downtown shouting "Nixon assassin!" and "Palestine for Arabs!"

The students published a resolution today that said, "American policy in the Middle East, favorable to Israel, and the open support given by President Nixon to this policy, amount to defiance of the charter and resolutions of the United Nations."

Tunisian security officials said there was a possibility Rogers might visit the university later if things were calm.

On his arrival, Rogers said he hoped his meetings would result in a new American policy toward Africa and added "I hope positive results will come from our conversations."

Rogers was meeting with Prime Minister Bahi Ladgham and Foreign Minister Habib Bourguiba Jr., son of the ailing president of Tunisia. The talks reviewed:

- U.S. aid to Tunisia, including $40 million this year.
- U.S. aid for flood relief, $2 million so far.
- The world situation with particular emphasis on the Middle East.

In his first stop on the tour, Rogers found leaders of Morocco concerned both about U.S. policy in the Middle East and what was described as a flow of Egyptian technicians into Libya.

Israelis Admit Losses

By United Press International

Israel has reported its heaviest losses in an Egyptian air raid since the 1967 war—four killed and seven wounded in strikes Monday that preceded a dogfight involving 40 warplanes.

"Unfortunately, they (the Egyptians) had a certain success inasmuch as they killed and injured so many of our men," an Israeli military spokesman said in a rare admission of Arab success.

Egypt's air raids against Israeli forts along the northern sector of the Suez Canal and deep into the Sinai Peninsula brought Israeli interceptors to the challenge.

The Egyptian command said 12 Israeli Mirage jets caught the Egyptian raiders over the Suez Canal and triggered a one-hour dogfight involving 40 planes.

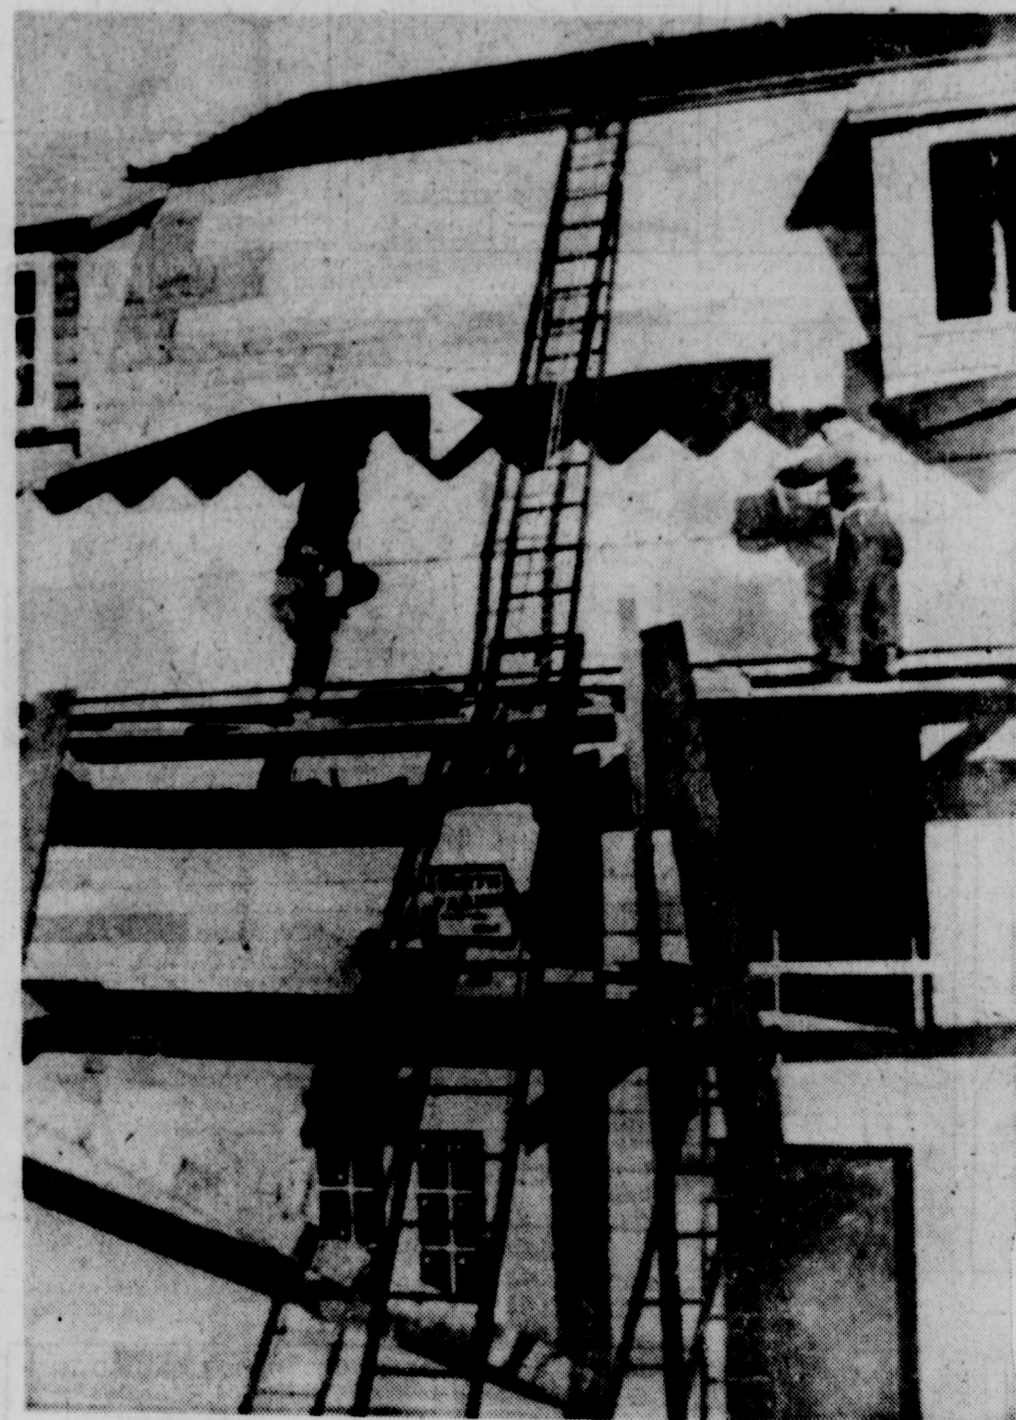

Israel said it shot down one Egyptian plane but lost a jet whose pilot bailed out and was captured. Egypt said its pilots shot down two Israeli planes and returned home without a loss.

The Israeli casualties—four soldiers killed, five soldiers and two civilians wounded—were suffered in one of the strikes along the canal before the dogfight, Tel Aviv said.

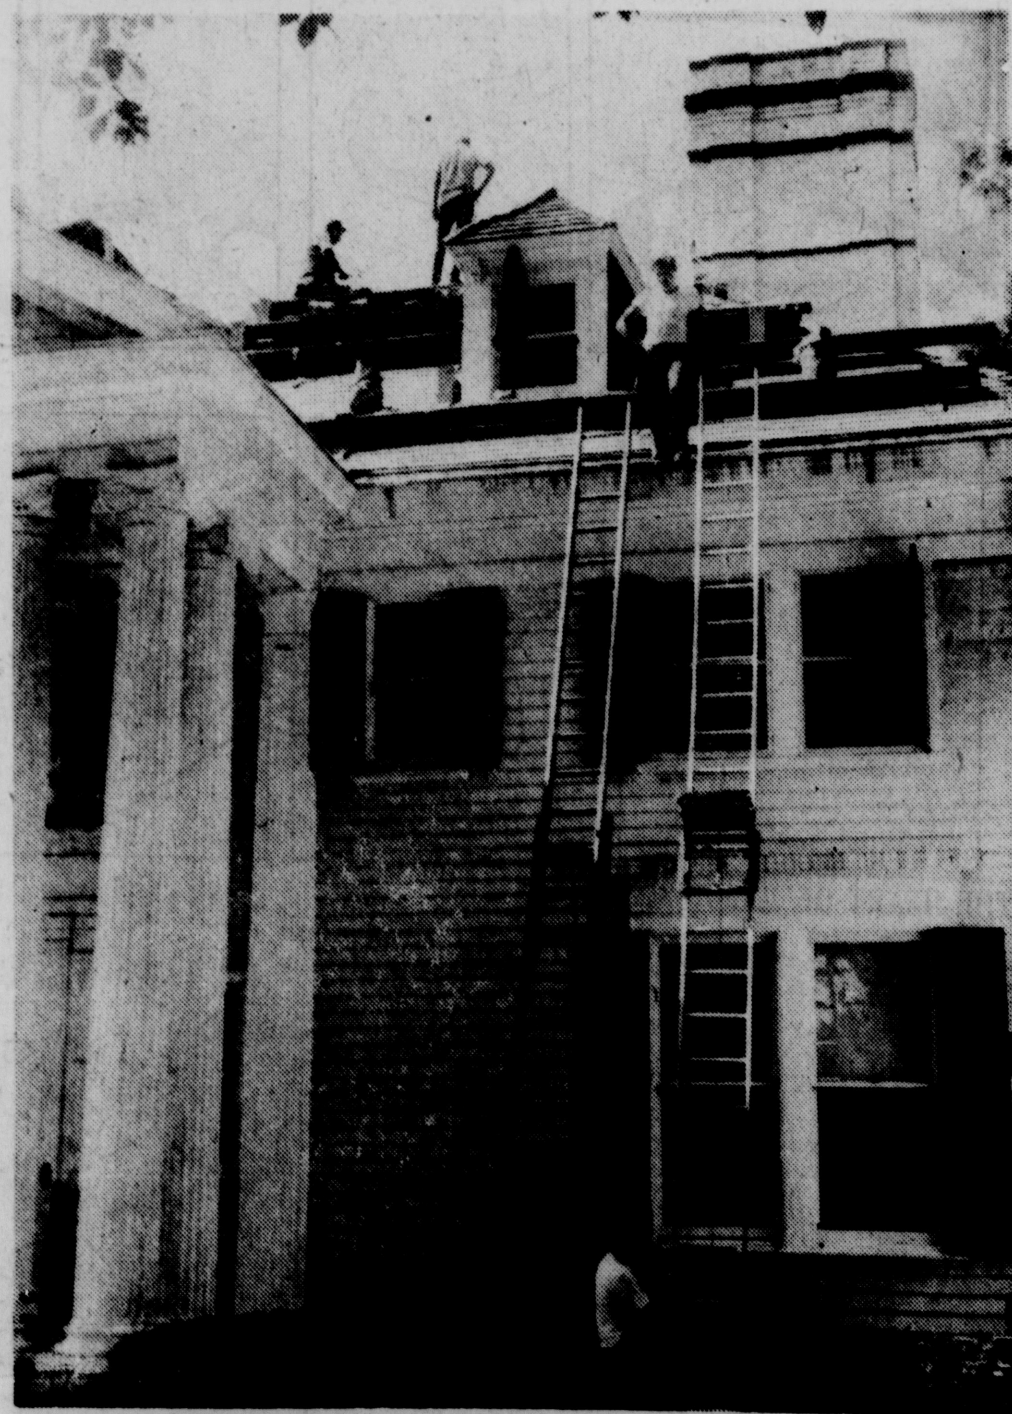

Neither side showed any signs of letting down the pressure of their air strikes, having pushed the Middle East air war to one of its most intensive since 1967.

gave residents 24 hours to paint the headlights on their cars blue as part of blackout precautions against Israeli raids, coming closer and closer to the city.

Smith Parish invented and constructed this "Ladder Wagon" shown in use on the Babcock barn, Hurley Avenue then being built in 1933. In order to carry material to the roof, the "wagon" had an ingenious set of wheels which would ride the wide part of the extension ladder as rails, then change to the narrow part as it reached that height. The power was a hand winch. Taken from our album of the early days, this picture shows William R. Parish at the left, Emerson Kilmer at the right, and omits Cliff Smith who clicked the shutter as the "ground" man.

This modern "wagon" recently manufactured by a national company on an aluminum ladder was purchased by Smith Parish about two years ago. It has a small electric power winch which is of course much faster than our early invention. Not only a labor saver, it has a valuable safety factor as well. In 37 years we've speeded the method of moving material, but our method of application remains just as painstaking. We take the same care and time required to do a job we're proud to label "Roof by Smith Parish." In some things we're ahead of our time, and in others, just plain "old fashioned."

Attorney Pursues Decision on Calley

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The question of who decided to keep Lt. William L. Calley Jr. in the Army past his scheduled discharge last Sept. 6 is being pursued by his attorney.

George Latimer, Calley's civilian lawyer, claims the decision to retain the lieutenant in the service and try him on charges of killing 102 Vietnamese civilians was made by "somebody in Washington."

Seeking to have the charges dropped, Latimer contends that the proceedings were influenced by President Nixon and others high in the chain of command, thus impairing Calley's legal rights.

A pretrial hearing for Calley resumes today.

Ft. Benning's two ranking officers and senior legal authority denied Monday that they were influenced in their decisions.

Col. Robert M. Lathrop, staff judge advocate for the post, also testified at the pretrial hearing that he was not told how to conduct the case, but that he sought advice on preparation of the charges from the judge advocate general in Washington.

Lathrop's testimony was followed by showing of nearly three hours of television news clips as part of the defense contention that pretrial news coverage and statements of high-ranking defense officials were not only prejudicial to Calley's right to a fair trial but influenced decisions at a lower level.

Maj. Gen. Orwin C. Talbott, post commander, testified that he arrived at Benning after Calley was charged and while an Article 32 investigation — the military equivalent of a grand jury inquiry — was in progress.

He testified that he was in no way influenced in his decision to refer the charges against Calley to a general court-martial.

Brig. Gen. Oscar E. Davis, who preceded Talbott as head of the post, testified that he was in command at the time the charges were made and that no one influenced him.

"I ask you whether or not there was any influence of any kind from friends, contemporaries, higher command or subordinates?" Latimer asked.

Davis replied, "Absolutely not. They avoided it like the plague. Nobody wanted to touch it."

Under Latimer's cross-examination Davis said he received a message "from the adjutant general of the Army pointing out that in order to hold a man on active duty past his ETS (military release date) he had to be under investigation for an offense that could lead to a court martial."

Latimer asked, "Who issued the order to keep Lt. Calley in service?"

Davis: "I issued the order of retention."

The complete text of the message sent in late August or early

September was never read in court, although a copy of it was entered in evidence.

After the hearing recessed for the day, Latimer remarked that the message "tends to indicate that somebody was interested in keeping him in and that person wasn't down here."

Calley was charged Sept. 5, one day before he was to have left the Army.

In response to questions, Talbott said he read reports of a My Lai massacre in newspapers, and heard radio and television reports.

Talbott denied that he had been influenced by remarks of President Nixon.

Nixon, in a message read by his press secretary, Ronald Ziegler, Nov. 19, described the My Lai incident as "abhorrent to the conscience of all American people."

The charges against Calley were referred to trial by Talbott Nov. 24.

The 26-year-old lieutenant, from Miami, Fla., was formally arraigned at the beginning of Monday's hearing before Military Judge Lt. Col. Reid W. Kennedy. Calley did not enter a plea.

Speech by Ribicoff Draws South Hurrahs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For months, Sen. John C. Stennis of Mississippi has dared his Northern colleagues to deliver the same kind of school desegregation in their states as they have tried to force on the South.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., took the dare Monday. He gave his full support to a Stennis effort to outlaw in the North de facto school segregation — that caused by neighborhood patterns. And he thanked his Southern colleague for trying to "make honest men of us Northern liberals."

Ribicoff's fellow Northern liberals to a man failed to support him on the Senate floor. Some said he had been taken in by a Southern effort to dilute integration in Dixie by spreading the emphasis across the country.

Stennis called Ribicoff's support a "landmark."

The thrust of Ribicoff's speech was an admission the North is just as guilty as the South when it comes to keeping blacks and whites apart. The North, he said, "is guilty of monumental hypocrisy in its treatment of the black man."

Silent Reaction From North

After Ribicoff spoke, no Northern senator rose to support him. His aides said none had volunteered. Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., praised Ribicoff for having "the courage and nobility to stand up before the Senate to tell the truth." But he said later he was undecided whether he would take a similar stand.

The issue is a proposed amendment to a four-year, $35 billion school aid authorization bill. It is one of about 10 such amendments put forth by Southerners. It would make civil rights laws apply specifically to both segregation that is instituted by law — "de jure" — and that which is de facto, or the result of the way schools and neighborhoods have developed.

"Massive school segregation does not exist because we have segregated our schools but because we have segregated our society and our neighborhoods," Ribicoff said.

"If Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi wants to make honest men of us Northern Liberals, I think we should help him. The North is guilty of monumental hypocrisy in its treatment of the black man."

More important than remaining school segregation in Dixie, Ribicoff said, "is the dual society that exists in every metropolitan area—the black society of the central city and the white society of the suburb."

South: 'A Turning Point'

Stennis and Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., leader of past Southern battles against civil rights legislation, hailed Ribicoff's speech.

"There's a man, a former governor, a former secretary of health, education and welfare, who has lived with the dual application of this law as long as he can and now his spirit has revolted against it," Stennis
